

US firm buys Swedish gambling game developer

Written by Johan Nylander

Tuesday, 22 May 2012 05:55 - Last Updated Tuesday, 22 May 2012 06:01

- Swedish video games attract investors' interest
- Angry Birds creator opens Stockholm studio
- 'Battlefield biggest Swedish export hit since ABBA'

American WMS Industries, a maker of casino gambling machines, has acquired a Swedish developer of online gambling games, Jadestone Group AB of Stockholm.

"Jadestone's online expertise accelerates our efforts to develop a comprehensive suite of interactive products, managed services and content distribution capabilities," WMS President Orrin J. Edidin said in a statement.

Terms of the cash deal were not disclosed.

Jadestone has established itself as a leading B2B platform integrator and online game publisher, serving customers primarily in Europe.