

Explosives found near nuclear power plant

Written by Johan Nylander

Thursday, 21 June 2012 08:55 - Last Updated Thursday, 21 June 2012 08:58

Swedish state-owned utility Vattenfall AB said late Wednesday that it has found suspected explosives in a truck that was trying to enter its Ringhals nuclear power facility in south west Sweden, Marketwatch reports.

The Ringhals nuclear power plant is the largest power plant in Scandinavia and its four reactors produce about 20 percent of all electricity in Sweden.