

Industrial production unexpectedly stalled

Written by Johan Nylander

Monday, 11 June 2012 02:43 - Last Updated Monday, 11 June 2012 02:53

Bloomberg said that Swedish industrial production unexpectedly stalled in April as the European debt crisis saps export demand in the largest Nordic economy.

According to Statistics Sweden, industrial production was unchanged in April, and output growth for March was revised down to 0.2 percent.